MESSAGE FROM THE ACTING TOWN MANAGER

April is an important month for the Town as we ramp up our spring programs and events starting with the Spring Egg Hunt on April 2nd. This longstanding Parks & Recreation event is a big hit with our younger residents. Speaking of hits, the Community Center beach chair service is up and running and going really well. Residents are loving it and our vendor is staying on top of the operation. April is also Earth Month and this year, to make a bigger impact, the Town is teaming up with the Plastic Fisherman for the Earth Day Plastic Fishing Festival and Resource Fair. This month we'll also celebrate the final Surfside Under the Stars and Third Thursday events of the season, sponsored by the Tourist Board. Stay tuned for additional event announcements coming later this spring!

TOWN COMMISSION ATTENDS HATE ENDS NOW EXHIBIT

Members of the Town Commission and Town staff experienced the Hate Ends Now Cattle Car exhibit show-cased at the Michael-Ann Russell Jewish Community Center in Aventura. The exhibit captures the suffering experienced during World War II by members of the Jewish, Black, LGBTQ+ community and other minority groups. The purpose of this exhibit is to make a commitment to combat hatred and indifference by educating the public on the history of the Holocaust and all forms of bigotry. The event was also supported by other local municipal and community leaders. Mayor Shlomo Danzinger and Commissioner Fred Landsmen represented the Town of Surfside.

CONDOMINIUM SPECIAL ASSESSMENT PROGRAM

Miami-Dade County is now providing funding assistance to help condominium owners pay for special assessments that can arise from building recertifications. Condo resident Commissioner Meisheid is raising awareness for this program where qualifying owners making less than 140% of the area median income (AMI) can get up to $50,000 in assistance to pay for these assessments. Individuals earning less than $95,620; couples making less than $109,200; three-person households earning less than $122,920; and households of four making less than $136,500 may be eligible.

The Condominium Special Assessment Program is designed to assist condominium owners to address and pay for special assessment requirements that arise from rehabilitation and repairs as a result of applicable building integrity recertification requirements.

SMOOTH OPERATOR - COMMUNITY CENTER BEACH CHAIR SERVICE UNDERWAY

Last month, the Town Commission introduced beach chair service exclusively for Surfside residents at 93rd Street behind the Community Center. A major goal for the Commission, the operation has proved to be a big hit with Surfside residents who have been enjoying the complimentary service with their families.

“The overall response coming in from residents is very positive so far. The service has been extremely popular since the roll out, and we’ve gotten many compliments for our vendor Luis and his staff at Beachtime Max who are doing an excellent job,” said Parks and Recreation Director Tim Milian.

Resident IDs must be up to date in order to use the chair service at the Community Center. For more information, call the Community Center at 305-866-3635.

KIDS IN SURFSIDE LEARN STEM VIA SNAPOLOGY: SPACE WAR ROBOTICS PROGRAM

The Town of Surfside Parks and Recreation Department is proud to present Snapology: Space War Robotics, a program that allows children to learn about space and technology by building their own LEGO robots. Snapology is an educational program that offers hands-on interactive learning through the use of building materials and focuses on teaching kids the principles of STEM.

“This is my favorite day, I come to learn here,” said with excitement seven-year-old Surfside resident Julia Wengier-Fridman about the program. Julia is part of the Spring Cohort which has a total of seven kids led by STEM instructor Eduardo Gonzalez. In the March Spring Camp program, a total of 23 kids joined the Surfside Snapology course. Snapology: Space War Robotics Program is a highly interactive, engaging, and fun program that inspires children to explore the wonders of space. The program was inspired by Star Wars, which features characters who travel across galaxies in spacecraft. In this program, students learn about different types of space vehicles and how they work together to make traveling in outer space possible. They also design their robot using snap circuits that can move around on their own through programming skills taught by the instructor.

Program Details: The Space War Robotics Program is a seven-week long program for kids ages 7-14. The class runs from March 9 through April 27, 2023, every Thursday (except March 23) from 4-5 p.m. The next session will be four weeks long in the spring mini term that runs May 4 through May 25, 2023, every Thursday from 4-5 p.m. The cost of the regular term program is $84 (Resident) or $119 (Non-Resident) per student. The cost for the spring mini-term is $48 (Resident) or $68 (Non-Resident). Please contact the Surfside Community Center at (305) 866-3635 for more information.

MARINE TURTLE NESTING SEASON IS UNDERWAY

From Code Compliance – Sea Turtle Nesting Season officially occurs in Miami-Dade County every year from May 1st through October 31st. However, those dates can be slightly misleading as we typically see nesting activity taking place before these dates. “Lighting Regulations for Marine Turtle Protection” is in effect during this time.

Little hatchlings are attracted to the brightest lights; therefore, this regulation intends for the most glowing light to be the ocean horizon over the land, so baby turtles crawl towards the ocean.

In developed areas facing the sea, artificial light from buildings disorients hatchlings and attracts them away from the ocean. Turtle-friendly lighting reduces disorientation and makes for a better success rate. Everyone must do their part to ensure a successful nesting season.

Make sure you:

Exterior Lighting Checklist

- Light fixtures must be positioned so that the point source of light or any reflective surface of the light fixture is not visible from the beach or otherwise illuminating the beach.
- All bulbs must be amber or red LED bulbs with long wavelength bulbs; low-pressure sodium bulbs, turtle safe lighting coated compact fluorescent bulbs; fiber optic lighting or true red neon.
- Fixtures must have opaque shields so that the light source is not visible from the fixture’s north, east, and south sides.
- Lights are positioned downward and away from the beach.
- Lights illuminating buildings or associated grounds for decorative purposes are positioned so light is directed downward and shielded or screened so that the light sources are not visible from the beach or are turned off between sunset to sunrise during turtle nesting season.
- Exterior lights used expressly for safety or security purposes are limited to the minimum number and configuration required to achieve their functional roles. Motion detector switches are preferred.

Interior Lighting Checklist

One or more of the following measures shall be taken to reduce or eliminate the adverse effects of interior light emanating from doors and windows within line-of-sight of the beach:

- Apply window tint or film.
- Rearrange lamps and other moveable fixtures away from windows.
- Use window treatments (e.g., blinds, curtains) to shield interior lights from the beach.
- Turn off unnecessary lights.

Remember, this checklist contains more than recommendations, these are enforceable measures in place to protect our most beloved Surfside neighbors – sea turtles!

SARGASSUM SEAWEED AND SURFSIDE'S SHORELINE

Have you come across an influx of sargassum seaweed while cruising the beach with your family in recent weeks? The annual sargassum season runs from March through October. It's an essential part of the South Florida ecosystem and this year, it is expected to be heavier than usual due to a larger offshore bloom.

"Sargassum provides habitat and food for many invertebrates, which gives foraging to migratory birds crucial to South Florida's coastal ecosystem," Lowell Andrew Iporac tells the Surfside Gazette. Iporac is Ph.D candidate of FIU's Marine Macroalgae Research Department of Biology. His research focuses on sargassum seaweed and its impact on Miami's shoreline stability. "Our subtropical climate makes wonderful grounds for wildlife that thrives in sargassum-prone natural areas and welcomes an array of bird species," he adds.

Sargassum is a floating, marine brown algae. It grows in the Atlantic Ocean forming during high temperatures and it's not harmful to humans. It floats from the waters near the west coast of Africa to the Gulf of Mexico and washes up on the Caribbean and Florida coastlines.

This year, recent satellite images show large seaweed patches just south of islands in the northern Caribbean. Experts anticipate that this sargassum belt will move farther into the Caribbean over the coming months and begin to wash up more frequently along South Florida coastlines throughout the spring, peaking in the summer months.

Although it's a valuable resource for native wildlife such as sea turtles and seagulls, it can be a minor inconvenience for beachgoers.

Surfside, luckily, is not as highly impacted by sargassum blooms as neighboring towns. However, we are taking the necessary steps to ensure it does not interfere with community beach time and tourism as our clean waters are a big draw for visitors and residents alike.

Due to its sensitive nature, sargassum management is not handled at the municipal level. Miami-Dade County tractors operate on a daily basis to cut and turn the seaweed everyday in efforts to reduce its presence in the shoreline.

The Town also hold several beach clean-ups throughout the year that focus on plastic and man-made litter, as trash separation from the seaweed helps speed-up its natural decomposition. Join us for our next event the Plastic Fishing Festival & Earth Day resource day on April 22.

We hope understanding sargassum seaweed's vitality to our ecosystem shines a new light if you come across some blooms while you enjoy a family beach day.

Celebrating Earth Day

SPOTLIGHT ON EARTH MONTH - @PLASTICFISHERMAN BRINGS ANNUAL FESTIVAL TO EARTH DAY RESOURCE FAIR

“We have always needed the sea to survive, but now, it’s the sea that needs us.” – Rodrigo Butori, @plasticfisherman

As the dangers of plastic pollution continue to threaten our marine life and beach ecosystems, South Florida is on notice. New residents, along with the state’s primary economic driver, tourism, continue to put an ever-growing strain on natural resources.

According to the IFAW (International Fund for Animal Welfare), an estimated 10 million tons of plastic end up in the ocean every year. Once exposed to the elements, plastic breaks down further into microplastics, which are made of particles smaller than 5 millimeters in size and thus represent an ever bigger threat to marine life. For this reason, it is imperative that plastic stays off the beach and that any debris is properly removed; but, why not have some fun with it?

For Surfside resident, environmentalist, and surfer Rodrigo Butori, the #plasticfishing movement aims to do just that. Started in 2020 organically on social media, the @plasticfisherman account has quickly racked up more than 19,000 followers on Instagram, employing art and creativity to create awareness about the marine plastic pollution problem and inspire action.

The concept is simple: pick up plastic on the beach, use a handful of pieces to create an ephemeral work of art, a plastic fish – take a photo and tag it with #plasticfishing on social media to amplify the movement and the message. Then clean it all up and dispose of it properly. The result? Less plastic on the beach, social engagement, and joining a global community of plastic fishermen and women.

What is plastic fishing?

1. Pick up five or more pieces of plastic polluting your beach or community.
2. Use them to make a little 🐟
3. Snap a 📸 of your catch.
4. Share it on IG using #plasticfishing.
5. Clean it all up and put it in the ♻️.

“The idea was that if we don’t pay attention to the marine plastic pollution problem and find a solution for it very soon, these plastic fish would be the kind of fish our seas will have. How about that? Plastic will become our ocean’s number one species. The ocean should be for fish, not plastic!” said Butori. This year, Rodrigo is partnering with the Town for an exciting new joint venture, the Plastic Fishing Earth Day Festival and Resource Fair, presented by the Tourist Board and Parks and Recreation. Already a staple Earth Day

Earth Day event in its own right, the Festival encourages participants to make their best plastic fish of the day. In addition to art, creativity, and conservation, the Plastic Fishing Festival will feature Miami-Dade County’s Sea Turtle Program and Ocean Rescue Alliance International as event partners. Attendees can also expect custom gear, live music at the Community Center fair, and a variety of prizes and vendors.

“Plastic Fisherman thrives with the power of community. More than ten thousand plastic fish “catches” submitted from all over the world prove we can make a difference together. That’s super inspiring because it shows that you aren’t alone. That seemingly small action you took by cleaning up the beach, combined with millions of other small actions, can have a huge impact.” said Butori.

“As a Surfside resident, I’m thrilled to partner with the Town this year. While Surfside’s beach is relatively clean, I see our community as a poster child for marine plastic pollution awareness. Hopefully, this movement, driven by love for the ocean and creativity, can inspire other communities to start plastic fishing.”

To put your plastic fishing skills to the test, join us for the Plastic Fishing and Earth Day Resource Fair beginning at 10 a.m. on Earth Day, Saturday, April 22 at 93rd Street Beach. Stay tuned to @visitsurfside and @plasticfisherman on Instagram to learn more!

TYO SUSHI DELIVERS CITY CODE FRESH

For Chef and co-owner Roger Epres, serving others is a labor of love that runs in his DNA. A devoted family man, he commutes to Surfside daily from Palm Beach if and when his other commitments, a successful catering business, don't get in the way.

In fact, it was his catering ventures that would ultimately lead to the opening of TYO Sushi, Harding Avenue's newest kosher Asian restaurant which debuted earlier this year at 9454 Harding Ave. The success of his sushi catering for the Miami HEAT basketball team would eventually spark the idea to open TYO Sushi.

TYO's first iteration opened several years ago at The Lincoln Eatery on South Beach; the popular food hall helped launch the TYO concept, which fuses traditional skill with modern tastes. Roger's wife Sheila helps with the marketing and operational side of the business which is just as important as the food itself.

If you're wondering where the TYO name comes from, the letters stand for Tokyo's city code.

"When it comes to sushi, freshness is everything. You have to have the best product, no compromises. That's why I have multiple providers in the area."

While sushi and Japanese recipes could be considered this quaint eatery's first love, local influences and pan-Asian flavors round out the well-balanced menu. One of the highlights is the TYO Roll with spicy tuna, avocado and cucumber wrapped with Japanese Hamachi, jalapeno, scallion plus a dash of spicy aioli and black tobiko to accentuate those exotic flavor notes. The crispy rice shared appetizer also incorporated some of these flavors in addition to a crunchy texture while the delicate, bright freshness of the classic tuna and Hamachi nigiris easily passed the basic sushi litmus test.

Insta foodies will appreciate that plates are all served beautifully, elegantly adorned with colorful, fresh flowers.

The shareable entrees round out the TYO experience as our delicious meal culminated with the braised Korean Short Rib. Served sizzling hot on a warm plate, this fall-off-the-bone, infectious aromatic recipe is a tribute to Seoul, South Korea. Chef Roger recounts that it was during a personal trip with his daughter that he first encountered the recipe – one he instantly fell in love with. After a little bit of research, Chef eventually found just the right version to bring back to the States.

In the few short months since opening, the restaurant has quickly gained popularity within the Surf-Bay-Bal area, which Roger hopes to get even more acquainted with. "I love being a part of a community, participating in events and getting to know neighbors, it's something I've always been drawn to" said Epres. With all the meticulous thought and attention poured into this small Town restaurant, TYO has clearly proven it has all the right ingredients for success .
